Hazel, the little daughter of John Piper, who was taken to San Francisco to be treated for blindness, can now see out of one eye.

When it comes to enterprise the Chicago woman is strictly "in it." One of her has just secured a writ of ne exeat republica to prevent her husband from eloping with a Midway palisance beauty-show charmer. Women have plenty of rights in this State if they only know how to enforce them, and the Chicago woman is learning how with a vengeance.

Judge Vogle of Indianapolis has sentenced the cowardly Salem White Caps who whipped a helpless woman to the penitentiary for terms varying from two to five years. A beautiful feature of the court's decision is that men who merely witnessed the outrage and did not interfere were adjudged equally guilty with the actual perpetrators and received equally heavy sentences. A few more such examples will put a stop to the infamous Hoosier "sport."

We have received from John Picht, 73 Avenue C, New York City, a copy of "Elements of Music," which represents a book on one page,—being the pupil's first year's study. It contains all the rudiments, from the first lesson to all the major and minor scales, chords, and key-notes; how to commit signatures to memory; a dictionary; and a full sized key-board, which shows position of all the Treble and Bass notes, on, above, and below the staff. Price, 5 cents.

Stewart on Deck.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Senator Stewart resumed his argument against the Repeal. In answer to the charge that those who oppose the bill were thwarting the will of the majority denied that such was the case. The filibustering were not the silver men but the Administration. It was filibustering against allowing the will of the majority to be expressed. They had used the most corrupt, most aggressive, most outrageous means, secret at first, public now, to enslave the majority. Let the Administration take off its hand and let the majority express itself in the Senate, he said, and silver would have nearly two to one.

Kyle of South Dakota, moved that when the Senate adjourned it be to meet at noon tomorrow. Defeated, 4 to 41.

Stewart then resumed his speech, and at 1:30, without concluding, yielded the floor to Jones of Nevada, who resumed his argument against the bill.

At 4 p. m. the Senate took a recess till 11 o'clock tomorrow.

FROM CHICAGO.

Chicago, Oct. 14th 1893.

Ed. Appeal.—Your readers would be surprised, as the World has been, at Nevada's fine exhibit in the Agricultural building at the Fair. The booths are so thick there and one sees so much of corn and grain that it is easy to overlook a display as I overlooked ours the first time I hunted. With the directions given me by James of ours—I had no difficulty. Jim was there elucidating some astonished spectators. He apologized for the appearance of the place but that was really needless. It looked attractive and inviting. A half dozen boxes of those matchless apples from Ross Lewers' Washoe orchard had arrived in the morning and were being put on exhibition. I wish to thank Mr. Lewers personally and for the people for his timely assistance. Those apples are just the thing and they are doing wonders for the State. You see genial James is a schemer. Instead of putting our apples in the great Horticultural building where they would be lost in the amazing quantities of fine fruit, he shows them in the agricultural booth where they are alone in their triumph. These and our big, smooth potatoes surprise and delight the visitors. We also have sheaves of grain, bales of hay and ornaments of corn as artistically arranged and as fine in their variety as those of any state therein represented. James was expecting an awarding committee on wheat, when I was there. Members of the committee had informed him that our wheat is remarkably heavy and fine. He now hopes to add perhaps another medal to our laurels. Doubtless you received a copy of a paper published here in the interests of irrigation. Much space is given in the latest issue to description and pictures of our exhibits, under the title "Nevada surprises the world." This splendid recognition is directly attributable to the efforts and courtesies of James Verington. James promptly ordered 1,000 copies of the paper for distribution. We should be thankful that James is aware of the value of printer's ink. I was gratified to learn from Jim that already many prospective investors have been anxiously inquiring for lands in Nevada. Jim assures them that we have all the acres they want, of a character to raise anything that grows. We will reap many benefits from our representation here but if we had given the State and her commissioner the chances that both deserved, the lesson to the world would have been of inestimable value.

Architecturally, the Agricultural building is one of the most pleasing. It has two water fronts, one of which looks upon the grand basin. It is on this side that the huge sculptured bulls and Norman horses gaze at each other across the water. On the roof of the building are many groups of statuary, one of the most graceful of which was appropriated from French designs, used at the Paris exposition. Inside, this monster edifice is so filled and choked with products of the soil that the task of seeing all is almost interminable. However, everything is attractively arrayed and with the infinite variety of display the place is a general favorite.

I had no difficulty in locating the chocolate girl. This is a statue of heroic size, standing upon a pedestal under a carved canopy. The whole is wrought in solid chocolate. The girl breathes forth a rich, dark brown flavor of the tropics, which not only draws one from afar but which is so prevalent as to leave lasting and agreeable taste in a sensitive mouth—like mine. I regret to record that I was not permitted to indulge the osculatory antics to which I was tempted by the girl's luscious lips. Near the girl is the champion all-round cheese from Canada. A rivalry has naturally arisen between the cheese and La Belle Chocolatier. The girl has the best of it. She is so sweet that the cheese is said to be turning green with envy. How true this is I know not for the cheese is all boxed up and you only see an immense round thing like the curbing for a well. You have no trouble detecting the presence of the cheese, however, owing to the qualities frequently attributed to Limburger. This quality is present in such quantities that you are very willing and anxious to concede that the cheese is without doubt the largest in the world.

In the annex to the building the machines and tools of the farmer are abundantly displayed. Everything from a hoe to a threshing machine is there. Many of the machines such as mowers and reapers are in motion. Crowds of country gentlemen with long shanks, slouch hats and slim-gaited whiskers, stand about discussing the relative merits of Buckeyes and McCormacks and how many acres of forest they have shaved off the earth and pulled out by the roots with their favorite machines in one day. In one place a pyramid of flows embracing the earliest contrivances used and the most modern implements, furnishes a fine study of the wonderful progress that has made this great exposition possible.

Lynched.

Lovejoy, Ga., October 24.—Arthur Bennett, a tenant on the plantation of Captain Joseph Burks of Ellenwood district, was lynched yesterday by a masked mob, which assembled at Williams Church, in a grove between Jonesboro and Morrow Station. Two weeks ago the family of Captain Burks was poisoned and it was by rare chance that any of the seven lives were saved. The crime was charged to Bennett, because of a quarrel he had with Captain Burks. After a two days' trial lasting until late Saturday night, Bennett confessed that he had sprinkled arsenic in the grist at the mill. He was turned over to Constable Gilbert for imprisonment in Jonesboro Jail.

A crowd of men intercepted the constable's team at the old church and took the prisoner out. They led Bennett into the church, gave him a few moments for prayer and then hanged him to the limb of a tree. The body was found there in the morning by the church worshippers.

Boiled Alive.

Cincinnati O., October 24.—The tow-boat Bellevue burst a boiler yesterday while lying at her moorings. Other shipping was saved from the fire which followed by cutting the Bellevue adrift. Firemen in shifts surrounded her with lines of hose and put out the blaze.

Her fireman, Reuben Simmons, was literally boiled by steam while imprisoned under the wreckage. Other members of the crew escaped with slight injury.
